CHOOSE FEATURES THAT MATTER

01 Understand Your Space

Here's what you need to measure:

- The wall-to-wall dimensions of your room
- Any architectural features (windows, outlets, radiators)
- The distance from where you want to place the chair to the wall behind it
- Doorway widths (yes, you need to get it into the room!)

Wall-hugger recliners need just 3-5 inches of clearance vs. 6-12 inches for traditional

02

Get Properly Fitted

The relationship between your height and recliner dimensions affects three critical support points:

HEADREST

LUMBAR

FOOTREST

Most manufacturers offer recliners in different scale sizes

PETITE
(5'3" & UNDER)

SMALL
(5'4"-5'9")

TALL
(5'10"-6'2")

EXTRA TALL
(6'3" & UP)

03

Test Drive Like You Mean It

- ☒ Do your feet hit the ground comfortably?
- ☒ Are there even pressure points?
- ☒ Does your back make full contact with the backrest without gaps?
- ☒ Are the armrests at a comfortable height so your shoulders can relax?

- ☒ Does your lower back maintain contact with the lumbar support?
- ☒ Is your neck in a neutral position, or are you looking up or down?
- ☒ Can you breathe deeply and comfortably?
- ☒ Where does the footrest hit your ankle? It should support your entire calf.

Spend 10-15 minutes in each position. Pressure points only intensify with use.
